College Observes 87th Alumni Day

As many as 1500 Alumni of Indiana State College took part in observances of the 87th Alumni Day and Commencement Service week end May 26-27, 1962. Alumni, especially those of the reunion classes of 1887, 1892, 1897, 1902, 1907, 1912, 1917, 1922, 1927, 1932, 1937, 1942, and 1952 had a full program of activities during their Alumni Day visit to the Indiana campus.

At the annual business meeting held at 10:30 a.m., in Fisher Auditorium, Helen M. Brennan, president, presided. Audrey Graham, 1917, president of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, spoke to the group on behalf of the teaching profession in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Flossie Sanford, 1917, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, also addressed remarks to the Alumni meeting.

Dr. Herbert E. Isar, assistant chairman of the foreign languages department at Indiana State College, discussed his recent attendance at a scholarly meeting at the University of Paris, France, where he presented a paper on Seneca.

Dr. Isar also visited some universities in Spain looking toward the possible establishment of a center for a year of foreign study for Spanish students from Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges. The Alumni Association, as a part of its project of continuing education, helped finance Dr. Isar's trip to Spain and France.

The Alumni Association approved the membership of the Indiana Alumni organization in the Council of Alumni Associations of State Colleges of Pennsylvania for the 1962-63 college year. Approval was expressed both for the continuation of the bulletin and the further development of the Annual Giving Program for Indiana Alumni.

Executive Committee members of the General Alumni Association met at 9:30 a.m., May 26, in Cogswell Hall with Helen M. Brennan presiding, to conduct the official business of the General Association. Reports on the actions of the various sub-committees of the Executive Committee were given to the General Association meeting by President Brennan.

At the annual Alumni Luncheon in the Sutton Hall Dining Room, R. Hastie Ray and N. DeWitt Ray, co-publishers of the Indiana Evening Gazette, were awarded the Ninth Annual Citation for distinguished service toward the attainment of high ideals for which the college at Indiana stands.

Dr. John E. Davis, acting president of the college, and Helen M. Brennan, president of the Alumni Association, gave greetings at the Luncheon meeting. Senior class comments were extended by Charles Reitz, president of the senior class. Spokesmen for various classes at the luncheon gave comments from those classes.

The remainder of the Indiana State College Alumni Day consisted of very interesting class meetings and reunions at 2:30 p.m. in Leonard Hall headquarters, a tea from 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. in the Sutton Hall dining room, the Alumni dance in the new Student Union building at 8:30 p.m., and socializing in the Blue Room (Recreation Hall).

Baccalaureate service was held at 10:30 a.m., Sunday, May 27, with Dr. Will W. Orr, president of Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pennsylvania, delivering the address on the subject, "It Is Finished!"

Dr. Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, gave the Commencement address entitled, "Commentary On Today's World", at the services which began at 2:00 p.m., Sunday, May 27, in Fisher Auditorium.

Approximately 463 seniors composed the graduating class of May 27, 1962. In addition, nine persons received the master of education degree, and certificates of attendance were given to foreign students from Colombia, El Salvador, and Nigeria. Thirty-seven senior men of the class of 1962 received ROTC commissions as second lieutenants in the United States Army.

Dougherty Named Baseball Coach

Owen J. Dougherty, a member of the Indiana State College health and physical education faculty for the past several years, will become head baseball coach beginning with the 1963 spring season.

In a reorganization of the health and physical education department extra-curricular assignments at Indiana State College, Mr. Chuck Mills of Pomona College, Claremont, California, will become head football coach in the fall of 1962, and Mr. Dougherty will assume the responsibilities of head baseball coach in the spring of 1963.

Mr. Smith who has served as head coach of both football and baseball at Indiana for nearly a decade will devote his full extracurricular time serving as director of athletics along with his teaching duties as an associate professor of health and physical education. These changes in coaching assignments have been made possible by increasing the staff of the health and physical education department at Indiana State College.

Mr. Dougherty began his work as an instructor at Indiana State College on September 1, 1956. During the years since he has been a teacher in that department and has assisted in coaching football and baseball.

Prior to coming to Indiana, he was a teacher and coach at Dunmore High School for two years. Before that he served as a graduate assistant at Pennsylvania State University, and previous to that he was in the United States Air Force as a personnel service officer stationed at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. Dougherty received his bachelor of science in education degree and his master of education in health and safety education from Penn State. He has taken additional graduate work at Penn State and Indiana State College.

Mr. Dougherty played professional baseball for two years. He is a member of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, the Pennsylvania State Coaches Association, Indiana County Coaches Association, The National Baseball Coaches Association, International Basketball Officials Association, and is a registered official in the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association for football, basketball, and baseball. While attending Penn State, Mr. Dougherty was captain of the football team in 1950 and was named on the All East Baseball Team in 1950.

Ray Brothers Receive Alumni Citation

R. Hastie Ray and N. DeWitt Ray, co-publishers of the Indiana Evening Gazette, were awarded the ninth annual Alumni Citation at Indiana State College at the Alumni Day Luncheon in Sutton Hall Dining Room, May 26, 1962.

The Alumni Citation is given annually to a person or persons believed by the General Alumni Association of Indiana State College to have evidenced outstanding service to the ideals for which Indiana State College stands through their contributions to education in general and the Indiana State College community.

Persons who have received this award previously include Agnes Sligh Turnbull, the famous American novelist; Carl S. Weyandt, industrialist; James Stewart, movie actor; James S. Mack, president and chairman of G. C. Murphy Company; Mrs. Ward C. Johnson, active alumni worker; Michael Gendich, Detroit industrialist and famous athlete; Ralph W. and Harry C. McCreary, Indiana industrialists; and Dr. Clara E. Cockerille, noted educator.

In selecting the Indiana Evening Gazette co-publishers for the ninth annual Alumni Citation, the alumni committee in charge cited the general service of R. Hastie Ray and N. DeWitt Ray as co-publishers of the Indiana Evening Gazette and as driving forces in the Indiana Evening Gazette for more than a half century, with emphasis on the Gazette's general support of public education during that entire period of time.

The alumni citation committee report stated that "for a half century the columns of the Indiana Evening Gazette have given sympathetic treatment to news of education as relating to every educational force in Indiana County, including Indiana State College."

"The Indiana Evening Gazette through the instance of the co-publishers has made it possible for the general public of the greater Indiana County community to be fully aware of the developments in public education and at Indiana State College in such a manner that the general public has had every reason to be an informed and alert citizenry, with regard to the education of the county's youth."

The alumni committee further noted that "R. Hastie Ray, who at this time is the president of the Indiana Printing and Publishing Company, has been manager of the Gazette since July 1, 1911, a period of about fifty-one years."

"He was joined in this news and general education enterprise by his two brothers, N. DeWitt Ray in 1914, and B. Dwight Ray in 1917. The three brothers were closely associated in this enterprise through all the subsequent years until the untimely death of the late B. Dwight Ray in 1950."

In acknowledging the service to education and their community by the Ray brothers, the Indiana State College alumni committee stated, "We are fully aware of the fact that throughout his lifetime association with the Gazette, B. Dwight Ray was in complete accord with his surviving brothers in their support of public education."

"While the Indiana State College Alumni Citation may be awarded only to living persons, the alumni committee is also deeply appreciative of the services of the late B. Dwight Ray."

"In many specifics the Indiana Evening Gazette has provided for its readership news information about every worthwhile educational, charitable, and public enterprise occurring in this greater Indiana County community for more than a half century."

"Reflecting the philosophy of its founder, Robert Nelson Ray, and the three sons who succeeded him, including the two brothers who were awarded the ninth annual Indiana State College Alumni Citation, the Indiana Evening Gazette has been and is a family newspaper which provides a balanced news information flow suitable for the general reading of entire families."

"The Indiana Evening Gazette under the leadership of the Ray family members has given its wholehearted support, for more than a half century, to community growth and worthwhile projects for a better and greater Indiana community and Indiana County."

The Alumni Citation report stated that "the Gazette's direct aid and support of education in general and of Indiana State College in particular, of the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, the Indiana Merchants Association, and every other worthwhile public and community enterprise have often gone unrealized by the general community."

The Alumni Citation Committee felt that "the awarding of the ninth annual Alumni Citation for service to community and education to R. Hastie Ray and N. DeWitt Ray should help focus the attention of the greater Indiana community on the public services which an outstanding, small city daily renders the greater community it serves."

"The myriad of fine things the Indiana Evening Gazette has done," the Alumni Citation Committee pointed out, "has included such projects as sponsorship of the Indiana County Soapbox Derby, aid in the Christmas Angel program, promotion of various projects at the Indiana County Fair, the various charitable drives which go on throughout the year, the Chamber of Commerce projects for community growth, the merchandising projects of the Indiana Merchants Association and other goals of worthy commercial enterprises."

"All of these things are in addition to the direct support the Indiana Evening Gazette has given to education in all of its various manifestations and to the various branches of government - local, county, state, and national."

The Alumni Committee pointed out that "an objective observation of the news columns of the Indiana Evening Gazette indicates that the publishers of this newspaper believe and practice their belief that a newspaper's role is to inform its readership of all the evidence possible about which they, as citizens, need knowledge in order to act as intelligently informed citizens."

"Further, the Gazette has given a variety of views of the news and community affairs so that, in general, most points-of-view on subjects of public policy under consideration are given opportunities to be stated in the Gazette's news and editorial columns."

"The Gazette has given ample evidence of endeavoring to present as fairly as humanly possible information and opinions on controversial subjects in the realm of government and politics."

"The best criteria in evaluating a newspaper's contribution to its community may be summed up in how well the newspaper opens its columns for news and comment on ideas with which the publishers and their supporters may not be in direct or indirect agreement," the Alumni Committee report stated.

"Objective observations indicate that the Gazette's news and editorial columns often present various ideas and viewpoints with which the publishers themselves are not in agreement which is an excellent policy for a free press."

The Alumni Citation Committee felt that "the Gazette has and does present fairly various sides of political controversy and of general news which related to matters of public policy about which its readers should be informed."

"In the area of conducting a small city news enterprise, the publishers of the Indiana Evening Gazette have taken the Gazette from a small weekly newspaper with few employees and small circulation and have enlarged it into an active daily newspaper with a daily circulation well over 15,000, which covers the greater Indiana Community and surrounding areas almost literally, like a news blanket."

"In keeping up with publishing trends, the Gazette has been a pioneer in the use of photography, in photo-engraving, the use of high speed presses, and up-to-date linotypes."

"The Gazette has been one of the first small city dailies to install complete Associated Press wire service giving to its readers an open access to broad coverage of important national and international news as well as local and state news."

"The Indiana Evening Gazette has been one of the first small dailies to come out with city editions and with many other innovations recognized as important by alert publishers."

The Indiana State College Alumni Citation Committee, speaking for nearly 20,000 Indiana State College Alumni, "congratulated R. Hastie Ray and N. DeWitt Ray and their late brother B. Dwight Ray for the Indiana Evening Gazette's untiring dedication to providing an excellent family newspaper for its readership in the greater Indiana County area over the past fifty years."

"In its study of the role of the 1962 citees in their service to education in the community, the Alumni Committee is fully aware of the many personal endeavors of the Ray brothers as individuals."

"The noteworthy work of R. Hastie Ray in the Chamber of Commerce and in other enterprises, as well as, in his managing directorship of the Indiana Evening Gazette, shows a lifetime of dedicated activity."

"The work of N. DeWitt Ray in the field of photography, photo-engraving, and overseas travel have provided the Gazette an additional window to the world through Mr. Ray's almost 200,000 miles travel around the world, behind the iron curtain, and to almost every continent."

The committee "further acknowledges with congratulations the publishers and their newspaper's unselfish news service to countless educational, welfare, charitable, and civic organizations of the county for a half century."

"Lastly but not least, the publishers' and their newspaper's endeavors in introducing and promoting projects for community betterment have been consistently outstanding and valuable."

Trustees Approve Naming Athletic Field for Professor Emeritus George P. Miller

Members of the Indiana State College Board of Trustees have voted to approve the naming of the new athletic field development in honor of George P. Miller, a former athletics coach and chairman of the health and physical education department at Indiana State College.

Mr. Miller was associated with Indiana State College athletics for a period of thirty-five years. He came to Indiana in the fall of 1926 as head coach and teacher of health and physical education.

Previously alumni and student groups at Indiana State College had suggested and recommended the naming of the new athletic field in honor of former Coach George P. Miller. The action of the Board of Trustees has the full support of the college administration, faculty, alumni, student groups, and local interests.

From 1921 to 1923, Coach Miller worked for two years as a physical education supervisor and teacher at the Wauwatosa, Wisconsin public schools. Mr. Miller graduated from the LaCrosse State University, LaCrosse, Wisconsin. During the 1925-26 year he was at Columbia University where he completed work on his master's degree.

He received his bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from Columbia University in New York City and did additional graduate work at the University of Illinois, Pennsylvania University, Northwestern University, and New York University.

During his long tenure at Indiana State College, Mr. Miller served as a teacher of health and physical education and coach of many athletic sports. For a number of years he was head coach of football, basketball, baseball, and other sports.

Many of his teams during the period from 1926 to the beginning of World War II were historic record teams at Indiana State College. At one time or another he coached all of the intercollegiate athletic endeavors at Indiana State College.

He became chairman of the health and physical education department in 1938, serving also much of the time after that as head coach and director of athletics. After 1951 he served chiefly as the academic head of the department of health and physical.

Over the years Mr. Miller was active in many educational organizations and in community affairs.

Throughout the years, Mr. Miller received many honors in education. He was president of the Pennsylvania State College Athletic Conference from its founding in 1950 to 1957, and in 1956 was president of the Pennsylvania Association for Safety Education.

Mr. Miller was a pioneer in driver education and safety at Indiana State College and in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Throughout his long career, Coach Miller not only emphasized intercollegiate athletics but also the value of physical activities which could be used for recreational purposes throughout a lifetime.

He has been at one time or another a director of playgrounds, editor of Physical Education magazines, a promoter of intramural athletics, and above all a promoter of participation sports that people could use as physical activity hobbies over a lifetime.

At the time of Coach Miller's retirement the Indiana State College Board of Trustees appointed him a professor emeritus of the College. The recent action by the College Board of Trustees marks another honor which the Board has conferred upon Coach Miller in relation to his work at Indiana State College.

Pomona College Coach Selected To Head Football Mentor Position at Indiana

Morton Joseph (Chuck) Mills, presently head football coach and assistant professor of physical education at Pomona College, Claremont, California, has been selected as head football coach and associate professor of health and physical education at Indiana State College.

Mr. Mills will assume his coaching and teaching duties at Indiana State College in the late summer, 1962, but was able to take charge of spring football training at Indiana this spring for a two week period.

Mr. Mills has been associated with Pomona College for the past five years and has served as head football coach for three years. His over-all coaching record as a head coach and assistant coach on the high school, junior college, and college level, as well as, semi-professional coaching is 96 wins, 37 loses, and 4 ties.

Prior to going to Pomona College in 1957, Mr. Mills taught one year at Citrus Junior College, Azusa, California; one year at Loyola High School, Los Angeles, California; two years at Mendel Catholic High School, Chicago, Illinois; and two years in the Chicago Public Schools.

He took graduate work at Indiana University and Purdue University. He received his master of arts degree in physical education from Los Angeles State College in California in 1958. He has since taken additional work at Claremont Graduate College where he is at the present time continuing his graduate work.

Mr. Mills, who is thirty-three years of age, is a member of the American Association of University Professors, the California Teachers Association, the National Education Association, the American Football Coaches Association, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, American Wrestling Coaches Association, The Little Scholar and Pop Warner Football Program, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Mr. Mills is vice-chairman of the football section of the NAIA and is presently on the program committee of the American Football Coaches Association, for which organization he has served on several committees.

Mr. Mills has seven articles published in coaching journals, as well as, an article in the summer manual of the American Football Coaches Association. He has also written a book on the administration and organization of the small college football program.

Dr. John E. Davis, acting president at Indiana State College, stated that Mr. Mills has been selected for the position at Indiana after careful screening from a large number of candidates.

His primary work at Indiana will be as an associate professor of physical education. His assignment as head football coach will be in keeping with Indiana State College policy in the assignment of faculty to take charge of extra curricular activities.

Coach Sam Smith, who has been head football coach and associate professor of physical education for the past ten years, will work full time as director of athletics and associate professor of health and physical education.

Dr. Edward M. Fryer, professor of physics at Pomona College and faculty representative to the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, stated "Chuck Mills has revived at Pomona College a real enthusiasm on the part of students for participation in intercollegiate football."

"About 85 men played football at Pomona in the fall of 1961 on three teams - varsity, junior varsity, and freshmen - from a student body of 1050 with 600 men," Dr. Fryer continued.

"I know of no college where 12-15% of the student body have so actively participated . . . Mr. Mills has made a real contribution in the organization and efficiency of practice time . . . His games have always been well played and I believe his players well instructed." Dr. Fryer asserted.

"Mr. Mills has organized highly successful coaching clinics each year, attended by several hundred high school and junior college coaches. He has worked hard to know the alumni and keep them informed of the team's progress. In general, he has seemed to keep the best interest of his players in mind," Dr. Fryer said.

"I like his philosophy of the place of athletics in an academic institution. In discussing the student-athlete, he gives first importance to an education, but believes strongly that experience in intercollegiate football is a sound contribution toward making a man. I think that he has a lot to offer for a college where academics and athletics are both important parts of the college experience," Dr. Fryer concluded.

An interesting item in Mr. Mills' background, Dr. John Chellman, chairman of the health and physical education department at Indiana State College, stated, is the fact that Mr. Mills coached with Terry Brennan in the Chicago Schools just before Brennan became head coach at Notre Dame.

At Pomona College Coach Mills was competing in a football conference where Pomona was the only college not giving athletic aid. At Pomona, no student could apply for admission after March 1; he had to be a B plus student and well over 1200 in the college board examinations. Pomona College has nothing in the way of athletic scholarships or physical education majors. It costs about $2500 a year to attend Pomona College.

At Pomona College in the fall of 1961 the football squad was composed of 14 pre-med students and 19 science-math majors.

In conducting his football clinics in California, Mr. Mills had as guest clinicians, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, Bob Devaney of the University of Wyoming, Ray Eliot of the University of Illinois, Don Warhurst of California Polytechnic, and Jordon Olivar who is reputed to be one of the nation's top coaches and one of the keenest football minds in America.

Research Survey Shows Indiana Students As Having Fine Attitudes

Contrary to a common popular image of college students, the students at Indiana State College take their college work seriously and have a purposeful attitude toward college attendance and general living, a survey conducted by the research department of the college indicates.

Indiana State College students surveyed indicated that they regarded their most important benefit from college attendance to be intellectual growth. The vast majority indicated a serious attitude towards religion and stated that they attended religious services more or less regularly.

Dr. Charles D. Leach, director of research, at the beginning of the last academic semester, contacted through a survey 2755 of nearly 3500 eligible undergraduate students at Indiana State College with regard to their reactions to twenty important questions.

Of the 2755 students contacted, a substantial majority of 1765 indicated that their most important benefit received from college is intellectual growth; another 421 indicated the most important benefit as cultural stimulation; a comparatively smaller minority indicated economic security or social contacts as their most important benefit from college.

Of the 2755, an overwhelming majority or 2075 indicated that they attended religious services frequently; another 316 said that they attended more or less frequently; and less than 3% of the students answered negatively about attendance at religious services.

Indiana State College students indicated more or less neutral attitudes about social organization membership. Almost 1200 of the 2755 students participating in the survey said they were not interested in fraternity membership. Fraternity membership was indicated by 335 and sorority membership by 263. Of the remainder less than 1000 expressed an interest in joining a fraternity or sorority.

Indiana State College students indicated that they regard the problem of cheating as a serious one. Of those participating in the survey of attitudes, 961 said they thought the problem was very serious; 1047 believed the problem somewhat serious; and 378 believed the problem not serious. The rest, numbering more than 350, had no opinion or did not answer the question.

Of the serious problems at Indiana State College, 1570 students regarded cheating as the most serious; 243 regarded sex problems as most serious; 410 said stealing; and 449 said excessive drinking.

In answer to a question as to what students like most about college, 1350 answered that they liked their personal freedom most; 761 answered independent study; 277, social activities; and 330, attending classes.

For the chief goals in life, 902 indicated vocational success; 614, helping others; 655, financial security; and 551, marriage.

In answer to the question regarding the chief danger to the security of the United States, student opinion was almost evenly divided between Soviet aggression, which 887 students regarded as most serious; and internal subversion, which 873 thought was serious.

Another 540 regarded economic collapse of the country as the chief danger to the United States' security; while 455 had no opinion or did not answer the question.

Indiana State College students in answer to a question as to what they most disliked in their fellow students indicated aimlessness with 875 votes; snobbishness with 835 votes; unfriendliness with 435 votes; bad manners with 573 votes; while 37 did not answer.

The Indiana State College students come principally from modest income families, according to the replies on the survey conducted by the college research department.

Of the students replying, 739 indicated an annual family income of under $5,000; 1244 indicated annual family income of $5,000-$7,499; and 629 indicated annual family income of $7,500-$12,499. Only 124 of the 2755 students replying indicated annual family incomes of $12,500 or more.

As a kind of reply to popular discussion about having too many education courses in teacher education, Indiana students were asked to answer this question "Would you like to retain your major and drop all education courses?"

In reply, 694 said they would like to drop all education courses; 654 said possibly; 1366 students said that they would not want to drop all education courses; and 41 did not answer this question.

Regarding college grades, the Indiana State College grading system is on a four point scale with A as 4, B as 3, C as 2, and D as 1.

Student grade point averages at the end of last semester were found to be under 2.00 by 346 students; from 2.00-2.49 by 1109; from 2.50-2.99 by 769; and 3.00 or above by 467.

Indiana State College students indicated that the sizes of their high school graduating classes were as follows: 115 said their high school graduating classes were under 50; 1053 said their classes were from 50-149; 1051 said their classes were from 150-349; and 531 said their high school graduating classes had contained 350 or more students.

In high school, 2315 Indiana State College students took the academic course; 191 took commercial; 214 took general; 30 took other courses; and 5 did not answer the question.

In answer to a question as to the percent of their high school graduating class that started college, 495 Indiana State College students said that 20% of their class started; 773 said from 20-29% started to college; 796 said 30-39%; and 667 said 40% or more. Only 24 did not answer the question.

Of these 2755 Indiana State College students in the survey, 928 were freshmen; 852 were sophomores; 656 were juniors; 317 were seniors; and 2 did not answer.

Of the students in the Indiana State College research survey 1222 were men; 1531 were women; and 2 did not answer.

With regard to their housing during the survey semester, 524 students commuted; 1500 live in college dormitories; 138 live in fraternity houses; 590 live in private homes; and 3 did not answer.

The college is very interested in the beginning of a liberal arts program possibly next fall. Of the student body who answered the survey questions, 477 said they would transfer to a liberal arts program if it were available now; 911 said they might; 1336 said they would not transfer to a liberal arts program; and 31 did not answer.

In answer to the question: "Would you have enrolled in a liberal arts program as a freshman?" 759 students said yes; 884 said possibly; 1090 said no; and 22 did not answer.

College Building Expansion Program Is Progressing To Meet Enrollment Increases

Building projects at Indiana State College designed to enable the college to meet increasing enrollment demands are moving forward. Through the excellent cooperation of officials of the General State Authority, the Department of Public Instruction, and other state agencies, the building projects which will provide facilities for increasing numbers of central western Pennsylvania area students seeking higher education at Indiana State College are receiving prompt attention.

The field house-gymnasium to be located on the new athletic field development, formerly known as the Glassworks Field, has been approved by both the General State Authority and the Department of Public Instruction. Architect for the new field house-gymnasium will be the Bellanti-Clauss firm of Philadelphia.

The Hunter-Heiges-Gross firm of Sharon has been appointed architect for a new men's dormitory which should house 208 or more men students. This dormitory, a four story building, will be located east of Walsh Hall adjacent to Keith School. Final architect drawings have been approved and bids for this new men's dormitory will be out within about two months. A new dormitory for women to be located along Oakland Avenue toward School Street is now in the planning stage.

This building has been approved by both the General State Authority and the Department of Public Instruction. Joseph Hoover and Associates of Pittsburgh have been appointed architects, and the dormitory will house 220 or more women students. The field house-gymnasium, a dormitory for men, and a dormitory for women are the latest developments in the Indiana State College building program.

An additional project which is to be a home economics classroom building will be constructed on east campus, east of John Sutton Hall. The Bellanti-Clauss firm of Philadelphia has been appointed as architect for this building.

Final plans for the home economics building will be submitted to state authorities within the next month and following bids it is hoped that construction will begin in the summer of 1962.

Now under construction, with Joseph Hoover and Associates of Pittsburgh as the architectural firm and the John McShain Company of Philadelphia as the general contractor, are three women dormitories located on the Memorial Field. These three dormitories are scheduled to be completed by July 1963.

Two very much needed additional projects are to be initiated soon. These include a dining room which is to be located at the corner of Grant and Eleventh Streets and a physical science complex addition which will be located on the north side of Walsh Hall extending towards Oakland Avenue. The total value of all these building projects will probably be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000.

College To Begin Liberal Arts Program

● Indiana State College will begin to offer studies in the liberal arts leading to the degree of bachelor of arts as of September, 1962, Dr. John E. Davis, acting president of the college, and Dr. Ralph W. Cordier, dean of academic affairs, stated in a joint statement.

The college has been authorized for this work by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction and the State Council of Education.

Indiana State College will offer studies in the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences with concentrations in English, speech and theater, art, music, philosophy, Spanish, French, German, mathematics, biology, chemistry, physics, earth science, history, political science, anthropology-sociology, economics, and psychology.

All these programs begin September 1, 1962. However, any person who wishes to begin such a program during summer sessions of 1962 will find courses being offered which will work into his regular liberal arts program.

In the program of studies in the liberal arts at Indiana State College 128 semester hours will be required for graduation. The student will be required to take 56 semester hours in general education, 4 semester hours in health, 36 semester hours as a major in the general education area of his or her choice—humanities, natural sciences, social sciences.

The remaining 32 semester hours may be taken as a concentration in a subject of the student's choice, or they may be selected from other subject fields or areas of general education.

A catalog for the liberal arts program will be available in July, 1962. For information regarding enrollment in liberal arts at Indiana State College interested persons should write the Dean of Students, State College, Indiana, Pa.

Home Economics Food Service Major Added

● Indiana State College's home economics department has now been approved for a school food service major leading to a bachelor of science degree and meeting certification requirements, according to Dr. Opal T. Rhodes, chairman of the home economics department at the college in Indiana.

The new major for prospective home economists studying at Indiana State College has been approved by the Board of Presidents of Pennsylvania State Colleges and the Pennsylvania State Council of Education, Dr. Rhodes stated.

Thirteen students in the Indiana State College home economics department are now engaged in work towards this major during the current semester, Dr. Rhodes said.

They will undergo intensive study in a curriculum designed to prepare them for taking complete charge of the food service division of large school systems.

It is predicted, Dr. Rhodes said, that by 1965 the general trend, both in Pennsylvania and throughout the country, toward larger school systems will be definitely established and there will be increasing need for thoroughly trained specialists with degrees in home economics and majors in school food service to supervise the greatly expanded food services in these large districts.

Increasing research, observations, and study have shown that proper management of large food service operations in large school systems demand intensively educated home economists with special training in food services in order to provide adequate supervision and operation of these school food services.

Indiana Art Alumni Start Exhibit Tradition

● An exhibition of a representative collection of paintings, sculpture, and crafts objects by invited alumni of the Indiana State College art department was on display in the Stabley Library, ground floor, rooms 2 and 3, at Indiana State College through May, 1962.

Artists invited to be represented in this initial showing by graduates of Indiana State College were randomly chosen on the basis of the recognition which they have achieved in their particular area of specialization and for their contributions to the field of Art Education.

It is hoped that this type of graduate show will become an established annual tradition at Indiana, and that future shows will provide the opportunity for all those deserving artists, not represented at this time, to be similarly honored.

Among the artists included were the following persons and their place of professional employment: Mary Kellar Auld of Allison Park, Pittsburgh, Glen Brougher of Ferndale Schools, Johnstown, Joseph Calley of Mt. Lebanon Junior High, John W. Conrad of Penn Hills, Thomas George Crane of Butler High School.

Robert C. Cronauer of Indiana State College, Thomas Dongilla of Ford City High School, William Farrell of Penn State University, John Ghrist of Indiana State College, Dona S. Groer of Penn Township.

Walter Groer of Penn Hills, Robert Hild of Har-Brack Junior High School, Michael Kensek of Har-Brack Senior High School, Joanne Lovette of Keith School, Robert Lyon of Millersville State College.

Clyde McGearry of University of Pittsburgh, Betty Jane Orms of Cochran Junior High School, Robert Seelhorst of Indiana State College, Jean Slenker of Maple Ridge High School, and Robert E. Slenker of Indiana State College.

College Activities and Changes

In his new role, Colonel Madsen has now taken command of the Indiana State College ROTC detachment and responsibility for the training of the 613 man Cadet Corps.

A veteran of 21 years active commissioned service, Colonel Madsen's most recent assignment was at the Utah General Depot, Ogden, Utah, where he was chief, Stock Control Division.

The new Professor of Military Science was born in Enumclaw, Washington, in 1918, and attended high school in Seattle, Washington. Colonel Madsen is a graduate of Washington State University, Pullman, Washington, and was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Quartermaster Corps Reserve on June 9, 1941, upon completion of four years ROTC training.

During the early part of World War II, Colonel Madsen served as a Quartermaster Staff Officer at the Santa Ana Army Air Base, Santa Ana, California. Later he served with the Office of Strategic Services in Burma and India. Immediately following World War II he was appointed Chief of Mission, Office of Strategic Services, Southeast Asia with headquarters in Singapore.

Since World War II, Colonel Madsen has served with the Headquarters, Quartermaster Inspection Service, New York City; First Arctic Test Detachment, Fort Churchill, Manitoba, Canada; The Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C.; The Staff of the Military Advisor to the High Commissioner of Germany, Frankfurt, Germany; Headquarters, Quartermaster Training Command, Fort Lee, Virginia; The Eighth United States Army, Korea; and most recently the Utah General Depot, Ogden, Utah.

Colonel Madsen is a graduate of the Armed Forces Food and Container Institute, Chicago, Illinois; Quartermaster Corps Advanced Officers Course, Fort Lee, Virginia; and the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

PUNXSUTAWNEY CENTER

● A Punxsutawney Center of Indiana State College will be located in what was formerly the West End Elementary School in the west end of Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, one block north of West Mahoning Street.

It is expected that college work will be offered beginning with the fall term, September, 1962.

The purpose of the Punxsutawney Center of the Indiana State College is to offer the first two years of a fully accredited academic program which would enable the student to be considered for transfer to the main campus of the Indiana State College at the end of the two years or possibly transfer to some other accredited institution of higher learning.

For students at the Center who wish to major in certain areas, transfer to the main campus or to another institution may be necessary at the end of one academic year. Individual guidance will be available and advanced planning and advisement will be done with each student at the Center.

CONANT VISIT

● Dr. James B. Conant, famous American educator and author, visited Indiana State College on April 30, to look at programs for the preparation of elementary teachers and secondary teachers in academic fields.

Dr. Conant visited Indiana as a representative of a New York based group known as "A Study of Education of American Teachers". He was accompanied by two representatives of that group, Dr. Robert F. Carbone and Dr. E. Alden Dunham.

Dr. Conant was especially interested in the preparation of elementary teachers at this time. His trip to Indiana State College was his first and only trip to a Pennsylvania State College.

Dr. Conant, Dr. Carbone, and Dr. Dunham interviewed members of the administrative staff, various faculty members and department chairmen, and a number of representative students of the college.

The three representatives of "A Study of Education of American Teachers" discussed teacher education in general in the state of Pennsylvania with Indiana State College officials, made an overview of the Indiana State College program, and delved into the general education program, the major requirements, and the requirements for a degree.

They were also interested in learning about the required professional sequences at Indiana State College and the student teaching program for both elementary and secondary teachers.

They also took a look at summer sessions, in-service, and master's degree programs. In general, they made a study of the overall aspects of general education and teacher preparation at Indiana State College.

SUMMER SESSIONS

● Indiana State College will offer a total of 261 courses in the 1962 summer sessions. Of these courses 90 will be on the graduate level and 171 on the undergraduate level.

Undergraduate summer sessions classes will be divided into three sessions with the pre-season beginning June 6 and ending June 22, the main session beginning June 25 and ending August 3, and the post-session beginning August 6 and ending August 24.

It will be possible for students to earn a total of 12 credits in the undergraduate summer sessions full time, Dean Ralph W. Cordier, director of summer sessions, said.

Graduate courses leading to the degree of master of education with majors in business education, English, elementary education, mathematics, music education, geography, biological science, physical science, science, guidance, and social studies will be given in three summer sessions also, according to Dr. I. L. Stright, dean of graduate studies.

The graduate studies pre-session will begin June 11 and extend to June 22. Main session on the graduate level will begin June 26 and extend to August 3. Post-session will extend August 6 to August 17. Dr. Stright said it will be possible for a graduate student to earn a total of 10 graduate credits during the full summer sessions.

SCHOLARSHIPS

● Indiana State College has allocated scholarships for the 1961-62 college year amounting to a little more than $54,000 and involving 253 students, according to Dr. S. Travor Hadley, dean of students.

College administered scholarships number 107 and are valued at $14,391. Scholarships from other sources involved 146 students and amount to $39,797.92, Dr. Hadley said.

Of the scholarships granted by the college, sixty-one are from the Corinne Menk Wahr Scholarship; sixteen are Syntron Foundation Scholarships; two are Presser Foundation Scholarships; five are Hannah Kent Schoff Memorial Scholarships; one is the Lenora Pechan Scholarship; five are Extension Service Scholarships.

Two are Ethyl Oxley Home Economics Alumni Scholarships; five are Federation of Women's Clubs Scholarships; two are Helen Wood Morris Scholarships; two are Lieutenant Alpheus Bell Clark Scholarships; and one each is granted from Kappa Delta Pi Award, Anonymous Math Award, Harriet Farr Davis Award, Elementary Education Award, and Alpha Omega Gamma.

Scholarships from other sources include five from Indiana Kiwanis; three from Indiana Rotary, State Scholarships; a number of scholarships from teacher associations, PTA's, corporations, lodges, state agencies, high school groups, foundations, industrial concerns, and businesses.

SPANISH ABROAD

● Preliminary discussions among state educational authorities indicate that Indiana State College may have a junior semester abroad in Spanish for interested students beginning in January, 1953, according to Dr. Edward W. Bieghler, chairman of the Indiana State College foreign language department.

Dr. Charles Boehm, superintendent of public instruction, has expressed the wish that Pennsylvania state colleges organize a junior year abroad in French, German, Russian, and Spanish, Dr. Bieghler explained.

Tentatively four state colleges have been asked to organize programs that will serve all 14 Pennsylvania state colleges as well as other colleges of the state.

Those institutions selected, Dr. Bieghler said, are West Chester State College which will organize the French junior year abroad, Millersville which will have German, Kutztown which will have Russian, and Indiana State College which will have Spanish.

Earlier this year representatives of these four state colleges met in Harrisburg for preliminary discussions. It was agreed at that time that with the possible exception of Spanish that the plan of a junior year or semester abroad in the four languages would probably not be initiated as early as September, 1962, as had been first suggested by the superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Bieghler explained.

However, Indiana has been given the go ahead to establish a pilot program with the University of the State of Veracruz in Xalapa, Mexico, as the cooperating institution.

According to Dr. Bieghler, the Rector of the University of the State of Veracruz showed a willingness to cooperate in this program; therefore, providing the necessary state and local decisions are made, the Indiana plan for a junior year or semester abroad in Spanish study will be effected January, 1963.

MACK LOAN AND SCHOLARSHIP FUND

● A new scholarship and loan program has been established at Indiana State College by the members of the Mack family, according to Dr. S. Trevor Hadley, dean of students and chairman of the college loan and scholarship committee.

Negotiations with the college for the establishment of this additional scholarship and loan program at Indiana were made with college authorities on behalf of the Mack family by Wade N. Mack, who serves as an officer in the student personnel program of Indiana State College.

The fund will be called The Mack Loan and Scholarship Fund and will be administered through the college faculty loan and scholarship committee.

Under the Mack Loan and Scholarship Fund plan, loan and scholarship grants are to be made on the basis of academic excellence, financial need, and the loan committee's confidence in the future contributions of the candidate to the teaching profession.

Funds will be deposited by the patron family with Mary L. Esch, who will serve as treasurer for the fund and these loans and scholarships will be administered through regular college channels and procedures for loan funds.

In the immediate future, loans will be made available under the following provisions: The maximum loan permitted per student will be $200 with preference to be given to freshmen and sophomores. Interest rates will be identical with those employed for the Jane E. Leonard Loan Fund at 2 percent per annum payable at maturity and 6 percent on renewed loans.

Applicants will make applications under this Mack Loan and Scholarship Fund through the dean of student's office at Indiana State College.

Provision has been made for scholarship grants under the Mack Scholarship Fund to be approved at a later time.

FIFTH YEAR INTERNSHIP

● Indiana State College will have a fifth year internship program leading to a master of education degree available for a limited number of elementary teachers beginning with the summer sessions of 1962, Dr. I. Leonard Stright, dean of the graduate division, states.

Under the Indiana fifth year internship plan, the participant will have first completed his or her bachelor of science degree in elementary education and have received a provisional certificate from the state.

The participant will then begin the fifth year program taking a total of 8 hours graduate work the first summer following the completion of the bachelor's degree work.

During the school year immediately following the summer session, the teacher, taking the fifth year program, will teach one semester as a full time professional teacher in a selected school system and for one semester will be a full time graduate student taking from 12 to 16 hours of graduate work on the Indiana State College campus.

A second elementary teacher will be paired with the first elementary teacher and will work the second semester as a full time professional teacher in the same classroom as the first teacher had for the first semester.

The second teacher will have taken 12 to 16 hours graduate work on the Indiana State College campus during the first semester.

During the summer sessions, which follow the intern teaching year, the student will then complete his or her master's degree work on the Indiana State College campus, receiving the master's degree at the August commencement in the first full year following the receipt of the bachelor's degree.

SUMMER THEATER

● Six plays for the 1962 season have now been scheduled by the Summer Theater Guild at Indiana State College.

These plays include the following:

TRI-TOWNSHIP ALUMNI

The Tri-Township Alumni Unit of Indiana State College met Monday evening, April 13, at the social hall of the Starford Methodist Church. A delicious dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The tables were beautifully decorated in a yellow and lavender color scheme by Mrs. Grace Forsythe and Mrs. Eva Hoolley. Forty-five members and guests were in attendance.

Mrs. Vivian Lovell presided at the dinner. Grace was offered by the Rev. William Lovell of Pittsburgh. During a business session committee reports were given by Miss Mary Bagley and Mrs. Emeline Keating. The present officers, namely, Mrs. Vivian Lovell, president; Miss Mae Brown, vice-president; and Miss Twila Engle, secretary-treasurer, were re-elected. Delegates to the Executive Council meeting May 26, at the college are Mrs. Matilda Patrick, Mrs. Kathryn Gibson, Mrs. Mary Alice Ray, and Mrs. Lovell. A contribution of twenty-five dollars is to be given to the Alumni Fund.

Miss Mary L. Esch, Miss Mae Brown, Mrs. Anna Maurer, and Mrs. Sarah Wellen aided in the program arrangements. A musical interlude featured Miss Kathy Fyock, pianist. Miss Fyock is a freshman at Indiana State College.

Miss Mary L. Esch, registrar of the college, and a member of the Tri-Township Unit, greeted the group, read a letter from Dr. Pratt, and emphasized alumni events of May 26, and the Summer Theater program. Dr. Pratt's letter was written in Rome and gave impressions concerning American prestige, inflation, war-hysteria, and education in Europe.

Dr. P. D. Lott, chairman of the elementary education department at Indiana State College and intermediary between the college and the alumni units, made a brief entertaining talk. "Growth" and "Quality" best describe the situation at Indiana.

Mrs. Mary Hart Rinn, former training teacher at the college, was presented by Miss Mae Brown. Mrs. Rinn with the assistance of her husband, J. Clويد Rinn, delighted her audience with an illustrated account of their travels in England, France, Switzerland, and Italy.

JOHNSTOWN UNIT

The Spring meeting of the Johnstown Unit of Indiana State College was held at the Y.M.C.A. Dairy Dine on April 30. An excellent attendance of 68 were present. President Mary S. Kellar presided at a short business meeting. The election results for 1962-63 and 63-64 were as follows: Mrs. Lillian Sann, president; Mrs. Carolyn Eschelman, vice president; Mrs. Diane Aikey, secretary-treasurer; Kathryn Long, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The retiring officers: Mary S. Kellar, president; Hannah B. McGowan, vice president; Leonora Gerhardt, secretary - treasurer; Nancy W. Meloy, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The group were guests of John Thomas & Sons and enjoyed a tour through the model home. A fine film on "Interior Decorating" concluded the tour. Cards were played to complete the evening.

PITTSBURGH-NORTH BOROUGH'S UNIT

The Spring Luncheon - Business Meeting of the Pittsburgh-North Borough Unit was held at the Congress of Clubs on March 17. Clara Anderson Plank, Winifred Orr, Alberta Luchsinger McKain, and Ann Clark Mellott were in charge of the delightful affair.

President Mildred Pauch presided at the business meeting; after which, the entire group enjoyed a "Trip to Hawaii" by our most interesting guest speaker, Mrs. Earl Keeler.

On May 19, the installation of officers is scheduled at a luncheon to be held at the University Club. Arrangements will be made by Sara Graber Niemeier, Edna Dy-sters Kappel, and Elizabeth O'Donnell Sanders.

Then, the next important gathering will be on the College campus, May 25-27, when most all the Class Reunions of 1962 will have representatives from our Unit! All concerned are eagerly awaiting "The Gathering of the Clan" and looking forward to seeing the "New Look" at the College and viewing all the additions!

Music lovers in Pittsburgh were delighted with the Women's Chorus of the College and their conductor, Mr. H. Eugene Hulbert, with the Misses Merelyn M. Davis and Margaret Glenn at the piano, when they appeared on Sunday afternoon, March 25, at Dr. Marshall Bidwell's Organ Recital. Congratulations! Come again!

PHILADELPHIA UNIT

The Philadelphia Unit met March 17, at the Women's University Clubhouse in Philadelphia with 26 members and guests present. A delicious, 3-course luncheon was enjoyed as was also the luxury of a reception room, lounge, and dining room.

It happened that John Hathaway, Assistant Professor of Art, Beaver College, had brightened the clubhouse walls with an excellent show of representative modern paintings, woodcuts, and linoleum prints. This exhibition was viewed and discussed with great interest.

The event of the day was the travelogue on Spain and Portugal by Mrs. Elizabeth W. Shaub, High School Instructor in English and Creative Writing, Ephrata, Pennsylvania. Besides slides, she had a colorful display of crafts from the countries. The beautiful print in the dress she was wearing was a Spanish textile. As Mrs. Shaub showed slides, she gave running comment that was very informative. Members thank Secretary Patsy High for it was through her influence that Mrs. Shaub came.

President Helen Snyder, who gave the St. Patrick's Day touch by shamrock's on name-cards and green in candies, said the minutes would be dispensed with and the meeting was adjourned.

Work is progressing on the new women's dormitory (picture above) which is being built on what used to be Memorial Field. These three buildings which are going to be connected will house over 600 women and is expected to be finished in July, 1963.

Other buildings soon to break ground are the home economics building on East Campus and a men's dormitory to be constructed by Whitmyre Hall. Within the next year the new dining hall and an addition to Walsh Hall will begin.
